All evidence considered by NLC

8 March 2011

The Northern Land Council (NLC) Chief Executive, Kim Hill, said today that claims by Maurice Blackburn that it had “unearthed” documents from National Archives said to contain “new” evidence about the traditional ownership of land at Muckaty Station nominated by the NLC for consideration as the Commonwealth Radioactive Waste Management Facility were misplaced.

“All information before the Aboriginal Land Commissioner, and the Commissioner's findings in the land claim, were considered by the NLC when nominating the site in 2007”, Mr Hill said.
